Viewing the FLS Content

Once a user has had an account created, they are ready to start viewing the on line material. Individual users will be instructed to report any difficulties or technical issues to their program administrator. If the issue persists the program administrator should call the SAGES office for technical assistance.

The below instructions are available as a separate handout “FLS-online Instruction Guide - Viewing Online Content.pdf” to distribute to each of your individual users.

1. To access the FLS Online content, please go to the following web address:
 - a. <http://fls-online.org>
2. The FLS intro page will load

3. After the introduction, the login page will appear

The screenshot shows the login page for the FLS Fundamentals of Laparoscopic Surgery program. The page has a blue background with the program title at the top. In the center, there is a white rounded rectangle containing the following text: 'In order to track your progress throughout this program you need to login with the Program ID, Username and Password provided to you.' Below this text are three input fields labeled 'Program ID', 'Username', and 'Password'. A green 'Login' button is positioned below the password field. At the bottom of the white box, there is a red note: 'When you are finished please logout by pressing the Logout button which will appear in the bottom right corner. This allows us to collect statistics about time spent on each module.'

4. Once the user enters the login information provided by the program administrator, they will enter the FLS-Online Learning Module and can begin reviewing the material as they like.

If you require technical assistance please call the SAGES office at 310-437-0554 x 108
Or E-mail: ed@sages.org
